matured and deliberate convictions of the people. I should like to see a return of the old days, when public men possessed the courage, unselfishness and patriotism that were necessary to lead the people along the lines of the broadest and most intelligent development. I am against the public servant who is constituent as the property of the proper I am against the public servant who is con-stantly keeping his ear to the ground.

I love the man who loves politics in its best and truest sense, no matter to what party he belongs. There has been a tradition in my family from the time when my honored sire began to vote the Demomy honored sire began to vote the Democratic ticket in the days when this city was a frontier town that neither land nor sea with such thoughts, I should aspire to a
